The first English railways were made of wood in Northumberland, about the year 1633, and were made of iron, in Whitehaven, in 1733. The first iron railroad was laid down at Coal Brookdele, in 1786. Steam power, to convey coals on a railway, was first employed by Blenkinsop, at Hanslet, near Leeds, and afterwards on the Stockton and Darlington railway.

Mrs. Rebecca Dye, widow of the late Henry Dye, residing about eight miles from Trenton, N. J., committed miles by hanging herself on Thursday morning last. The Plinois River is frozen over at intervals from Peru to its mouth, and the stream is falling rapidly. The steamboat Bridgewater, the last boat out, was obliged to lorce her way through ice an inch in thickness. The penny post was established in London by a ratified undertaker by the name of Murry, in the year 1853. In 1711 the government discovered that the business, which had by that time become a very profitable one, belonged of right to themselves, and therefore took it away from him; but allowed him a pension of £200 per annum for the remainder of his life. The New Bedford Morcury says that the aggregate of criminal business in the State of Massachusetts, during the year 1845, comprises 2279 prosecutions, out of which there have been 1038 convictions, 103 acquittals, and other cases variously disposed of or are still pending.—The costs have amounted to $30,850. The Westchester Herald of the 10th says:—The intropid navigators of Sing Sing have succeeded with much labor and expense in forcing a passage through the ice, (about a mile distance,) to the channel, for the largest class of steamers, and we have the pleasure to announce to the public that the navigation of the Hudson River between this place and the city of New York is again unobstructed, and the steamer Croton, Captain Lynch, seaves this afternoon for that port; and will continue her trips for the season.

The Pittsburg Gazette of the 4th instant says:—We conversed yesterday with a gentleman, who came upon the Hibbernia as far as Wheeling. He says they had much difficulty in getting up. On reaching Captina they found the channel closed with ice, and after making more than a dozen attempts to break through, were obliged to desist for that time. After lying by a short time, another attempt was made, and the boat grounded in full eight feet water, the ice on her bottom being so thick. Accounts from Iowa Territory represent the growing wheat crop as in a sufferiog condition. The winter, up to last accounts from the West, has been a singular one—mostly dry and pleasant. But very little snow had fallon, and there was no sleighing to speak of. Much wheat is represented to have been killed, and many fields appear to be dead, though it was hoped a spell of favorable winter and spring weather would revive them.

The report of the Chief Topographical Engineer states that the importance of the harbor of St. Joseph, Michigan, is every year increasing. Locks have been constructed on the St. Joseph river, at Miskwaka, and at Bristol, which have opened the navigation to Three Rivers, a distance of 130 miles from the lake. The export of wheat alone this year is estimated at 750,000 bushels—equal at least to half a million of dollars. Three steamboats are running on the river.

Manch 13.—Draisions.—William Ward vs. the ship Pansma, Frederick Cameron, 4c.—This was a libel filed against the Pansma, and her tackle, for the recovery of £1278 British—the amount of a bottomry bond. The case was very fully reported in the Hersid of Tuesday. The Court pronounced its judgment to-day. His Honor said he would decree for the face of the bottomry bond, and marine interest, and also with interest at the rate of 6 per cent upon the amount, from the 14th July, 1846, to the date of the decree, and costs to be taxed—this decision not to preclude the libellant, Charles E. Quinzy, in contestation of his claim-browing that the claimant, Cameron, was not owner of the ship at the time the bottomry bond was executed, or that the bond is not valid or operative for the full amount, as sgainst said Quinzy; the bond to remain in court until the decision of the issue pending in that behalf, on the part of said Quinzy.

The select committee of the Senate, which was appointed yesterday to investigate the charges of the Times against the whig members of that body, met at the capitol this morning, and entered upon the duties assigned them. Messrs. Dow & Robinson, of the Times, and Lieut. Porter, of the Navy, were cited, and appeared to give in, in evidence, whatever they knew of the matter. The two former were required to specify the facts which they had to affirm, and name such wincesses as they should produce to corroborate the same. This they have done. Lieut. Porter, as I have been informed, states merely that one of the door-keepers had informed him, a short time since, that the whig Senators were holding a caucus above stairs. The Lieutenant, in restating this, added the fact of having himself seen Mr. Pakenham in the capitol the same morning. If there be no other testimony than this, to fasten so serious a charge as treachery to their country upon the whig Senators, it had been better it were never made. The Senate of the U. States, though composed of individuals no better, or more able to resist temptations than other men in a different position—still there is an air of dignity and self respect connected with them as a whole, of which they are, both individually and collectively, extremely jealous. It is not so much, perhaps, upon their own account, personally, that this price of positiou is felt by them, as for the sovereign States that they represent; and therefore, it is a most wicked thing for any one, through political hostility, either to a part or the whole of that body, to make charges of so sbominable a nature against them, as those in the Times, without first having the most irrefragible proofs to sustain them. appointed yesterday to investigate the charges of they represent; and therefore, it is a most wicked thing for any one, through political hostility, either to a part or the whole of that body, to make charges of so subminable a nature against them, as those in the Times, without first having the most irrefragible proofs to sustain them.

From what has transpired of to-days proceedings before the committee, I am led to believe that the whole affair will turn out to be nothing more than mere vapor—smoke, if you choose to call it. The examinations are held in private, and will remain so until the committee get through with the entire business.

Speaking of appointments and removals among some of Mr. Tylers friends last night, one of them remarked that there was not more than one of that party now in office, except Mr. Wise, Mr. Gwin, and Mr. Polk's brother; and, as the President had up to this time decapitated nearly all of the "Captain's" old adherents, it was not to be expected that he would leave those then in office long, including Mr. Tyler's last nomination, Wm. H. Polk. The remark was just, though ludicrous enough. It will be remembered that, just before Mr. Tyler leit Washington, he nominated that young gentleman as charge to Naples, with a very long list of others, fox, various appointments. The Senate, however, declined acting upon them; and he, with all the others, had to go over till the next administration, which is this, came into power. Mr. Polk renominated his brother for the place for which Mr. Tyler had done it previously, and this secured him a very pleasant and comfortable appointment, at $4500 a-year, where he has nothing to do except lounge about the places of public amusement and eat macaroni. It would never have occurred to Mr. Polk to put his brother into an office of that kind, if indeed he would have though of giving him one of any kind, had not John Tyler dene so before he left the White House, and thus saved the President the mortification of knowing that he had a brother for whom he would wish to provide, but could sot, on account of their progress, the examination, from the necessi-ties of the case, being conducted with closed doors. Connected with the startling allegations of the Dat-ly Times, upon which this Board of Investigation is called, we have a word to say, concerning a member of the Committee of Foreign Relations. The name and the charge having been published in other quarters, and the matter being no longer a secret, it may be as well to say in the outset, that Senator Allen is strongly suspected of having furnished the editor of the There with the raw material of his de len is strongly suspected of having furnished the editor of the Times with the raw material of his Blue Beard disclosures. But upon this subject, an another good-natured Prospero, who also seems to have taken the fictitious blue-bottle with the avidity of a gudgeon, may be better conversant. Certain it is, that when Mr. Mangum, yesterday, mentioned that the reason why he sanctioned the resolution for a committee, was that one of the firm of the paper indicted had proclaimed as his authority for his charges of corrupilion, a member of Congress—"what?" exclaimed a Senator on the democratic side—and the voice to us sounded like Mr. Allen's. We looked in the direction of the Senator's seat; but there was nothing in the expression of his countenance to indicate alarm, excepting, perhaps, that his cheek, always pale, may have been a little paler—the shock was so sudden, you know. Besides, by common consent, a number of inquisitive eyes, as well as Mr. Mangum's, were turned simultaneously with his declaration, in the direction of the Senator from Ohio. Now, we know that, from Mr. Mangum's position in the chamber, when he rises to speak, his lace is necessarily opposite to that of the leader of the Spartans. I' was undesigned and unavoidable with him, and perhaps equally involuntary with a score of others. Mr. Hannegan was not present, nor was Mr. Haywood, nor was Mr. Colquitt—a remarkable co-incidence of absenteeism, though entirely accidental. The fact is, though we would endorse at this moment, as cheerfully as five years ago, the innocence of Senator Allen in the premises, he must have known that he was suspected. This was enough to startle a high-minded Senator, and send his blood freezing through his arteries. The announcement, by Mr. Mangum, of the authority of a member of Congress, was, therefore, tantamount, by construction, to a personification or palliation of the penalty.

Now, we don't acknowledge to the practice of looking behind the record, nor do we assume the supernatural faculty of clarroyance; but editor of the Times with the raw material of his Blue Beard disclosures. But upon this subject, an-another good-natured Prospero, who also seems to

As the debate advances in the Senate, the issue of the great question becomes more doubtful and uncertain. All the old party lines of the day are broken to pieces by this Oregon controversy. A new formation must take place, for I do not believe it is in the power of any man to reconstruct the same materials which brought Mr. Polk into power.
